

DG2L Opens European Office in Brussels to Support Expanding Customer Base

Las Vegas - April 25, 2006:

Today at NAB 2006, DG2L Technologies, a best-in-breed digital media company, announced it is opening a new office in Brussels, Belgium in May. The new office will be key to supporting DG2L's European clients in the digital cinema, broadcast television and video service provider industries.

"Global demand for DG2L's Digital Cinema system and set-top boxes has been strong," said Ankur Sheth, CEO of DG2L Technologies. "The opening of our office in Brussels is a critical move in DG2L's long-term strategy to forge new partnerships and develop strong customer ties throughout Europe. We are excited about the opportunities in Europe."

The Brussels office joins numerous DG2L offices throughout the world, including Beijing, Mumbai, New York, Tokyo, Taiwan, Singapore, Changsa, and ChongQing. It will provide both sales and engineering services for the company's end-to-end digital cinema system, Neuron line of MPEG-4 AVC DVB-IP hybrid set-top boxes and Phoenix MPEG-4 AVC broadcast encoders.

DG2L at NAB '06

At NAB '06, DG2L is launching its new Neuron 2000 Set-Top Box, the world's first DVB-IP box to support AVC high definition (1080P) as well as standard definition services (please see separate announcement). DG2L will also provide demonstrations of its line of Phoenix Broadcast Encoders and DG2L Cinema System.

DG2L Cinema System is an end-to-end solution comprising film capture, encoding, encryption, management, and playback at the theater. Last month, DG2L announced a significant digital cinema milestone surpassing 30,000 digital movies shown using the DG2L Cinema System platform.

DG2L executives are available to speak with press and industry analysts on a number of technology and market-trends. To see DG2L products in action, please visit Booth SL 1976, South Hall 2.
